

ABSTRACT

Zahra Imani (2017101039)

TENDER WORK PROCESS IN MjBarchitects

Internship program is an important requirement for graduation to become an graduate in architecture. When carrying out intership at MjBarchitects, the practitioner is positioned as a person who produces working drawings such as plans, views, and sections. Besides that, the practitioner also worked on a tender project for the renovation of the Austrian embassy. In addition to producing working drawings, the practitioner is also tasked with inputting data into the Notion page, such as updating the material list, and inputting the project database for the ongoing Tirtayasa project and the completed Cilegon Container project. Learning while doing internship, the practitioner can find out how teamwork in the real world of work. Time discipline and required to be more creative when looking at project discussions. In working on the tender process for the Austrian embassy renovation, the practitioner was faced with a revision of the working drawings that had been made by the practitioner and his teammates several times. In working on the renovation project, the practitioner can find out how the tender system is in an architectural project. So that when carrying out the tender process, the practitioner is already imagined with the material from the Construction Management course, and helps the practitioner to find out earlier than the tender process.

Key words: Tender, Working Drawings, Internship