This research was conducted to find out whether there is an influence on profitability, solvency and liquidity on company performance due to the presence of Covid-19. In this study, a different test was also carried out to find out how the differences were before and after the Covid-19 pandemic. This study uses samples from the health care and insurance sectors where there are a total of 32 companies that have met the criteria in the test. The sample was selected using a purposive sampling technique. In this study, secondary data was used, where the data was obtained from IDX and company pages.
