

ABSTRACT

Citta Nayaka JyestaLoka (2019101059)

HOME DESIGN AND RENOVATION OF RESIDENTIAL HOUSES IN PT. PRAKARSITA

Professional work is one of the mandatory requirements for graduation at Pembangunan Jaya University. The professional work is carried out for three months or approximately 400 hours. In this case, the intern does work at Studiogiri (PT. Prakarsita) which is an architecture and interior design studio with a building focus on residential and commercial projects. During the internship at Studiogiri, the intern was involved in several projects with the outline being designing layout plans and designing room interiors and facade shapes. The assignments carried out by interns focus on designing and renovating residential homes into commercial buildings. In designing a residential building, one of the projects uses the science of Feng Shui to determine the layout plan between the rooms. Apart from designing layout plans using Feng Shui science, the task carried out by the intern is translating the TOR to create a new plan which was previously converted into a commercial plan. Apart from that in the same project, the practitioner created an alternative facade with the function of a restaurant-type commercial building. Next, the work carried out is translating and making shop drawings to serve as a reference in the construction of residential renovations. Another task is to design the bedroom space by making a mood board as a design reference in creating the bedroom space.

Keywords: Design, residential renovation, design and build, interior design