

ABSTRACT

Rifdah Aristawati (2020011032)

THE PROCESS OF SALES RECEIPT AS A PART OF ACCOUNT RECEIVABLE MANAGEMENT IN COMPANY XYZ

Apart from carrying out formal lecture activities at Pembangunan Jaya University, students at Pembangunan Jaya University hold professional work courses where all students are required to take part in these activities in the hope that students can apply the theory obtained during the lectures. Another benefit is that it provides provisions for students to know more about the world of work and prepare themselves in the future where competition will be increasingly fierce. Practitioners carry out work professions at XYZ Company which operates in the e-grocery sector which provides various daily needs, namely to meet food needs. During the implementation of professional work, practitioners are given several jobs such as recapping sales data, processing and recording business to customer receivable account transactions, processing and recording business to business receivable account transactions, helping the accounts payable team to receive and check the completeness of documents from vendors. In its implementation, Company XYZ has carried out records properly using a qualified accounting information system, namely using accurate online software. Through carrying out this professional work, practitioners gain a lot of knowledge which is very useful for practitioners in her future careers.

Keywords: Transaction, Account Receivable, Accounting Information System